

Writers Academy Retreat:

Telling your Story through Publication

Join us June 10 -11 and July 30 -31

for a new, unique writing retreat.

This is your chance to tell your stories through the structure of the Writers' Academy.

Have you wanted to write about what you have learned or observed in education but just didn't have the time or didn't know what editors were looking for?

You will have the opportunity to create a peer editing network and schedule time for you to write, write, write over this four day experience with two days at the Rickman Center in Jefferson City, Missouri.

Registration and continental breakfast on the first and third days will begin at 8:30 a.m. Departure on the second and fourth days will be at 3 p.m. Lodging and meals will be provide in this retreat setting and included in the $100 registration fee. The book Publish or Perish: The Educator's Imperative will be provided.

Please fill out the Writers' Academy application located at <http://dese.mo.gov/divteachqual/leadership/>. In addition to the application through mylearningplan.com,

This workshop is intended to be a small reflective learning environment in which participants are selected to participate.
